Thanks very much for taking time to attend Ernst. I have found your input invaluable and very appreciate it.

As mentioned a big part of this process has been to build a public recognition and pressure on local government to ensure this project gets put on the Regional Transport Plan.

I'd appreciate it if you can let me know the timeline form here around this process and any other suggestions/recommendations you may have to help progress this.

Thanks again.

Kind regards,

Mike Sabin

Thanks again Mike, I think the community found it a very helpful meeting in finding out where things stand.

My official title is 'Director Auckland and Northland' but I like the one below!

> "These bridges are a death trap, unfit for purpose and I believe that the information I have accumulated after 2 years of investigation substantiate the need for this project to be one of the priorities advanced by the Northland Road Committee to the New Zealand Transport Agency (NZTA) for the next round of work programming," says Mr Sabin.

> During the public meeting at the Matakoho War Memorial Hall this evening organised by Mr Sabin he updated the local residents on why he believes the bridge realignment hasn't occurred and the process he has undertaken to build a case for the realignment. This has involved looking at the economic importance of the bridges to the Kaipara and investigating injuries and deaths that have occurred on or near the bridges since they were constructed in the 1930.

> "What is clear is that the locals are right to be concerned about these bridges; they are not only a vital economic route for the highest performing primary goods producer of Northland's economy, they are a death trap," says Mr Sabin.

> "My inquiries have established that at least 10 people have been killed in crashes at, or leading up to these bridges and many more have been seriously injured.

> "I have reviewed screeds of economic data, searched archives and records, interviewed locals and undertaken Official Information Act requests, which have most concerningly, uncovered a horrific legacy of death and carnage dating back to the 1950's. This has shed an entirely different light on the need to re-align these bridges and prevent further victims, of what amounts to poor road engineering, that has long ago shown it is not fit for purpose" says Mr Sabin.

> "The analysis of the fatalities and serious injury crashes shows that more than three quarters of the crashes are as a result of the road engineering itself – something that hasn't changed since the road and bridges were built over 80 years ago when carts and horses were using it.

> "The carnage I have been able to confirm on these bridges amounts to a social cost of what would be more than $70 million, let alone the devastating affects to the lives of those impacted.

> Mr Sabin explained that he had presented his findings and case for re-alignment to the Northland Road Transport Committee (RTC) who are responsible for determining priorities for roading projects of this nature and am also working closely with NZTA on the best way forward.

> "For this project to proceed the four councils on the RTC need to agree to make this a priority project and put it in the Northland Regional Transport Plan for the 2015 – 18 period, which is being finalised later this year," says Mr Sabin.

> "It is quite simple; if the RTC don't put this project in the Transport Plan it wont happen, and given 10 people have already lost their lives as a result of this piece of road I sincerely hope that it is included in the plan.

> "Once it is submitted to the NZTA as part of Northland's Regional Transport Plan I believe a new funding category introduced in the new Government Policy Statement, called the Regional Improvements Activity Class could well provide the solution to getting this project signed off," says Mr Sabin.

> Ernst Zollner, NZTA Auckland, Northland Roading Manager and Jacqui Hori-Hoult, Northland Regional State Highway Manager for NZTA also attended the meeting an explained the process through which capital projects such as this are evaluated, approved and funded.

> Mr Zollner reiterated the requirement for projects to be assed under the national NZTA criteria for approval they first have to be prioritised and included in the Regional Transport Plan. He also concurred with Mr Sabin that the new Regional Improvements Activity Class created funding opportunities for rural projects which have "high personal risk" factors and therefore warrant doing.

> "I am really pleased that the RTC are now looking at this project and considering it for the 2015 – 18 plan and I am keen to keep working with them and NZTA to ensure the Matakoho realignment gets sign-off.

> "The recent storms which have seen major closures and detours around our Northland roads has essentially seen SH12 become SH1, which is something I am sure wont be lost on the Far North and Whangarei District Councils with heavy vehicles from these districts having to use SH12 as the main thoroughfare through to Auckland.

> Ironically, the Matakoho bridges reminded all at the meeting of their dangers when on the very day of the meeting there was a head-on between a truck and motor vehicle requiring closure of the road while a person was cut from the car and airlifted to hospital.

> "No-one else should die or be seriously injured awaiting the realignment of these bridges. The information is all there now and the case for this project is overwhelming and compelling in my view and I sincerely hope the people of Matakoho and the wider Kaipara are supported by the RTC to put this job forward on the next Regional Transport Plan," says Mr Sabin.
