Introducing a more granular ‘movement and place’ approach to the One Network Road Classification (ONRC) system allows us to better consider surrounding land use, community wellbeing, economic activity and growth aspirations for the future. It will provide an easy-to-understand common language that all transport, land use and urban planners can share.