

What's happening on the work site

Trucks crossing" sign on site fence just past Tory Street intersection

Tactile paving extended at Tory Street lights

Watch out for: Trucks and trailer units taking soil away from the site. Motorists, please be aware of the "trucks crossing" warning sign installed by the site just past the Tory Street intersection.

Week starting 12 August: New site entrance will be opened off Sussex Street near the pedestrian crossing. Traffic management personnel will control the entrance.

Lighting: The street lights between the National War Memorial and former Mount Cook Police Barracks have been fixed by Wellington Electricity.

Easy walking: Pedestrians should be finding the walk around the site perimeter much easier now that most of the underground services work outside the site has been done. There is more room to move and ground surfaces have been repaired. Tactile paving to assist people with visual impairments at the Tory Street and Sussex Street lights has been extended.

Time lapse footage updated on You Tube

Two time lapse cameras are capturing footage from each end of the site. The individual photos are then pulled together in a movie which is sped up so viewers see progress happening quickly. The cameras snap a photo every 7.5 minutes from 8am to 8pm. They are regular digital cameras powered by solar panels in weather-tight boxes.

During the next month

Cambridge Tce

Installing new stormwater pipe across Cambridge Tce near Basin Reserve

- Expect intermittent lane closures 12–20 August
- Daily work starts 9.00am, potentially up to 11.00pm, includes weekend work

Sussex St (east) end

Excavating trench – initially includes removal of concrete kerb and old footpath.

- Intermittent noise from work breaking concrete and removing it from site
- Noise from the excavation that follows should be similar to road traffic hum

Taranaki St (west) end

Upgrading water main, stormwater and sewer

- On site work – will not inconvenience pedestrians
- From 12 August, the usual footpath will be open again

All of site

Continuing trench excavation

Installing ground anchors for retaining walls

- Anchor crew works 6.00am – 8.00pm
- Generator lighting will be turned off when they finish

General site work hours

Mon – Fri: 6.00am–6.00pm

Noisy work after 7.00am

Sat: 7.00am – 2.00pm

Noisy work after 8.00am
